Complete the web on climbing the summit by Tenzing and Hillary.

Colonel Hunt said, " By all means ,I am glad to you know that you brought the an Indian flag" .

After one hour of steady going, we cut across the South face and and started up west side where we had to pass up a steep line of rocks.

This was slow and difficult. Once we had cleared these, there was nothing baring our way to top but a snow -covered incline ,sloping less and less at it neared the top.

These last Sixty or Seventy feet up the top were not very dangerous. But we kept up the same steady pace .And we reached the the small ,flattened summit almost together.

During the last fiftyfeet from the peak, Hillary and I were moving about twenty feet apart .We were tied together with a rope. Most of the time the rope was loose, but when we went over dangerous ground ,we drew it taut.

This rope was symbol. It tied us together one could not move without other. We were not to individuals but a but a team

I have been ask many times , "who was first"? When we were within reach of summit, I did not think of who was going to be" first." I am sure that Hillary was not thinking that. Climbing takes all your attention .You have many more important worries.

What does it matter whether I reached the top first or Hillary?Our main thought was that both of us read the top .We had to. One could not do it alone.

If there had been a difference of one thousand feet between us ,then one would make the claim that he was first. But even then, only the man behind him could confirm the distance between two of them.

Some people can just never wake up early .They munch their the breakfast on the way to work. They have excuses ready when they reach office late.They miss trains on a regular basis.They have never seen a sunrise or met a milkman.

Until a loved one turned over a new leaf recently, she was such a late riser. Try as she might ,she couldn't help pressing the snooze button a hundred times before she finally get up. She felt terrible about this tendency but there was nothing she could do about it. Come morning, she would just not be able to shrug off the desire to sleep a while more. Only when divine intervention answered her prayers recently she was able to join the early birds' club. Another relative has no such plans of joining this league though. She is rather unabashed about waking up past noon on a daily basis.

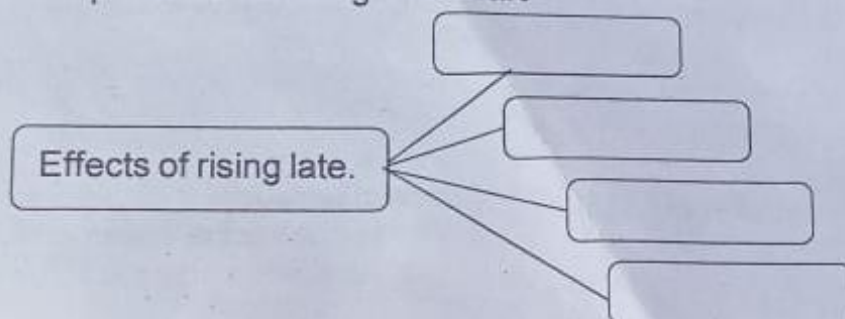

To be fair, her husband is a media personality who typically arrives home from work past midnight. That does indeed give them sufficient justification to stay longer in slumberland each morning. This practice does lead to certain oddities though. He goes for his morning walk at 1 p.m. ... heatwaves and appalled onlookers notwithstanding. They once returned from a night out only to meet neighbour's son who was off on an early morning jog! Early risers clearly have the edge in life. By the time most of us wake up, they have been through their morning rituals, enjoyed their walk, had their tea and read the daily news. Thus by the time the sun warms up they're likely to have discussed all varieties of 'men, matters and affairs' with a dozen people.

Eight years have passed
 Since I placed my cherry seed in the grass .
 "Must have a tree of my own , " I said,
 And watered it once and went to bed
 And forgot; but cherries have a way of growing Though no one's caring very much or knowing. And suddenly that summer near the end of May ,
 I found a tree had come to stay.
 It was a very small, five months child,
 Lost in the grass running wild.
 Goats ate the leaves , the grass cutter scythe
 Split it apart and a monsoon blight
 Shrivelled the slender stem ...even so,
 Next spring I watched three new shoots grow.
